Local food produced close to market is soaring in popularity. But the mostly low-income immigrant workers employed in local food production factories are being left behind. They work long hours hand-crafting food but wages are too low to live on with dignity. Many workers contend with highly unsafe working conditions, resulting in serious and even fatal injuries. Workers of color, immigrant workers, and women workers face particularly egregious discrimination and abuse on the job. Brandworkers empowers low-income workers to develop as leaders and partner with community allies to campaign for dignified jobs within a just food system. In 2016, Brandworkers advanced campaigns to achieve dignified jobs in local food manufacturing, facilitate the leadership development of immigrant workers, and launched a free online platform to facilitate collective worker change.
